Dr. Chandramouli Nagarajan joined the Department of Haematology at Singapore General Hospital in 2014. Having completed undergraduate training at Chennai, India in 1999, he joined the prestigious Post Graduate Institute of Medical Education and Research (PGIMER), Chandigarh, India where he completed the 3 years Internal Medicine residency programme.

During this time he successfully submitted his thesis on alcohol and its effect on asthma. He was awarded MD (Internal Medicine) in 2003. He moved to the UK for further medical speciality training.

After obtaining MRCP in 2005, when he was working at the Department of Haematology at the University Hospital of Wales, Cardiff he developed a keen interest in Haematology.

After a brief assignment at the Royal Victoria and Royal Freeman Hospitals in Newcastle he entered the 5 year Haematology speciality training programme with the East Midlands Deanery in 2007.

He completed FRCPATH in 2011 and received the Certificate of completion of specialist training (CCST) in 2012.

He served as a Consultant Haematologist at Warrington & Halton Hospitals NHS Foundation trust in the North West of England for 2 years before moving to Singapore.

He is a member of the Speciality Question Group (SQG) for MRCP. He has contributed as a member of several committees, was the clinical lead for blood transfusion services and has been involved in research, serving as a principal investigator for clinical trial during his tenure at Warrington.

He was elected to the Fellowship of the Royal College of Physicians (FRCP), Edinburgh in 2014.

He is a registered member of Indian Medical Association, is on the Specialist Register of the General Medical Council, UK and Singapore Medical Council and is a member of the European Haematology Association. Outside medicine he has keen interest in South Indian Classical Music and enjoys playing Badminton and Tennis.
